

4 Phases of Life

Despite spending 16% of our life in educating ourselves, we still need to learn a lot after coming out of school, before we start to earn sufficiently. No matter how much one earns, some people never find it enough, and continue earning by one means or the other until they die.

However, some do realize after their mid-life that they were indeed in a wrong race and try to find the meaning of life by returning back to the society through charity and teaching.

Which phase are you in?
