

Man created us

Human in 4040
our destination

Humans are nowhere to be seen,
they are already extinct!

Humans are Machines

In fact, the primitive human may be the wonderful machines engineered by Gods at the peak of their technological development in a similar evolution as of today, that's why we regard God as our creator. If this is true, then with no offense to God, we may be the hybrids of God and Human and have been created to take development into new heights than God did.

Hence, when the human-machine hybrids start ruling the earth in about 200 years from now (and pure humans gradually disappear), they will say, "humans created us", and they will take this technological development into newer heights.

Then is God same to us now what we will become to robots in the future?